We Bring in a Minority Report
We Need More Than Just a Speed Limit

Arkansas newspapers generally are following the lead of the two Little Rock papers in endorsing without amendment the recent decision of the state government to enforce on both home folks and tourists alike the state's 60-miles-an-hour highway speed limit. But this purports to be a cure-all for the state's rising death rate on the highway — and I object to that, and the facts are on my side.

China to Whip Japan Alone, Says Chiang

Need Only Economic and Material Aid, Says Generalissimo

CHUNGKING, China — (AP) — Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek declared in a speech Saturday night which was released only Monday morning that China, without the help of an expeditionary force or naval action, but with material and economic aid, was prepared to undertake single-handed the task of putting down Japan.

He added it was his conviction that "any country in the world democracy itself against American democracy would meet with certain destruction."

He spoke at a farewell dinner given by Madame Chiang for U. S. Ambassador Nelson T. Johnson who is leaving to become minister to Australia. He declared that the so-called world peace plan advocated April 30 by the Japanese Times & Advertiser, which he called "the official mouthpiece" of the Japanese foreign office, showed "Japan's aggression in China is but a preliminary to an attack on America."

The Japanese dream, he declared, was to effect complete nullification of U. S. power in the Pacific.

"Should the Japanese militarists manage in some way to dispose of their China problem they certainly would attack America," Chiang added. "A Chinese victory or defeat would be a victory or defeat for America and every other nation in the Pacific. A Chinese defeat would result in the expulsion of the British and American armed forces from the Pacific, and Soviet Russian arms from Vladivostok and Siberia."

WPA Labor for Sidewalks

Plan Revived to Save Builders Money on Project

City treasurer Charles Reynerson announced Monday that plans are being made to reopen the WPA sidewalk project in Hope, and asked that all interested persons to get in touch with him at once.

Under this plan the WPA will furnish all labor and supervision for the project and property owner furnishes the sand, cement and gravel, saving half of the cost of production. Sidewalks laid by the WPA will not cost more than ten cents per square foot, Mr. Reynerson said.

CRANIUM CRACKERS

Citizens in Office
Nearly every public office carries with it some citizenship requirement of the holder. Here are some questions about citizens and their eligibility for various offices.

1. Is a man 32 years old, who became a naturalized citizen when he was 23, eligible to become a U. S. senator?
2. Can a man become a member of the house of representatives at the age of 28 if he was naturalized when he was 23?
3. Who was the first natural-born citizen to become U. S. president?
4. What is the youngest age a naturalized citizen could be to become a member of congress?
5. Could a naturalized citizen become U. S. vice president?

British Capital Raked by Flame Over Week-End

But RAF Armada Bombs Hamburg and Bremen, Vital German Centers

By the Associated Press
London's millions trudged to work Monday through acres of fire-blackened ruin in the heart of the empire capital—scorched anew by Luftwaffe violence over the week-end—but they knew Germany at least was feeling the sting of a big scale aerial counter-offensive.

An armada of 100 RAF warplanes bombed the ports of Hamburg and Bremen during the night, it was reported, leaving "many large fires" raging in both cities from a rain of Britain's new super-bombs.

Other RAF planes attacked Emden and raided three points in Nazi-held Holland.

In an evident attempt to cripple the RAF German planes concentrated the weight of their overnight assault on bases in southern, central and south-eastern England.

London itself had the lightest night raid in three weeks; however, thousands huddled in bomb-proof shelters.

Commons Chamber Bombed
LONDON — (AP) — Arthur Greenwood, minister without portfolio, whose job is to rebuild battered Britain after the war, surveyed Greece Monday in the House of Commons which only four days ago was a thronged debating chamber.

Standing beside a teetering wall, Greenwood observed rubble, charred wood and masonry piled 50 feet high, where pillars once soared to the vaulted roof and where oaken panels and tall windows once had graced the galleries.

"This, too, will come within my province, and I must think about its reconstruction," he sadly remarked.

Senate Group Votes to Seize Foreign Ships

Commerce Committee Reports Bill Favorable by 11 to 4

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Legislation authorizing the government to take over all idle foreign ships in U. S. harbors was approved Monday by the senate commerce committee 11 to 4.

Prior to the final ballot the committee rejected 10 to 6 efforts by Senators Vandenberg and Clark to prevent the taking of vessels from one belligerent and turning them over to another, for instance, taking an Italian vessel and giving it to the British.

The proposal is expected to be pressed again—probably late this week.

The senate group wrote an amendment into the house-approved legislation to forbid the government from taking over any vessel owned by foreign countries without purchasing them.

Army Asks for Younger Men

Hope Man Appointed As Examining Physician

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Selective service headquarters asked Congress to amend the conscription act Monday in order to bring younger men into the army.

Brig. Gen. Hursey, who presented the amendment, informed Speaker Rayburn that it was the army's experience that the small percentage being inducted from the higher age groups caused problems in connection therewith.

He said that men in the younger age brackets were best qualified.

2,500 ARKANSANS IN JUNE
LITTLE ROCK — (AP) — Brig. Gen. E. L. Compere, selective service director of Arkansas, predicted that approximately 2,500 Arkansans would be called to duty in June under the selective service act.

Gen. Compere said he had been informed officially that figure would be near 2,500.

Hope Man Appointed
General Compere announced the appointment of 17 additional examining physicians, already confirmed by Washington headquarters. They include: Hempstead county, Dr. A. J. Neighbors.

'Answer Man' Is Shown in Error

Credits Largest Melon to North; Hope Corrects Him

Albert Mitchell, "The Answer Man" who broadcasts every Tuesday night from Chicago, was heard by Hope people to say last Tuesday night over Station WHO, Des Moines, Iowa, that the world's largest watermelon, 175 pounds, was grown in 1934 near a Northern town.

Weldon Taylor, Paul Hutson, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Black and others promptly mailed "The Answer Man" proof of his mistake. What they mailed Mr. Mitchell was the Hope Star postcard picturing Dick Powell and the O. D. Middlebrooks 1935 world's champion watermelon weighing 195 pounds—a world's record which still stands.

Local radio fans waited expectantly for Mr. Mitchell's broadcast this coming Tuesday night, May 13.

Hempstead Youths Head Agri Group

FAYETTEVILLE — Two Hempstead county youths have been elected officers of the University Agri Day Association, according to a news release received here. They are Darwin Jones, of Patmos, treasurer and Van Hamilton, of McCaskill, publicity manager.

'Dive' Attack on Convoy in Atlantic

German airmen over the Atlantic. . . . Sight convoy, send Stukas diving . . .

To diving camera British merchantman appears to be riding a sea of mud . . .

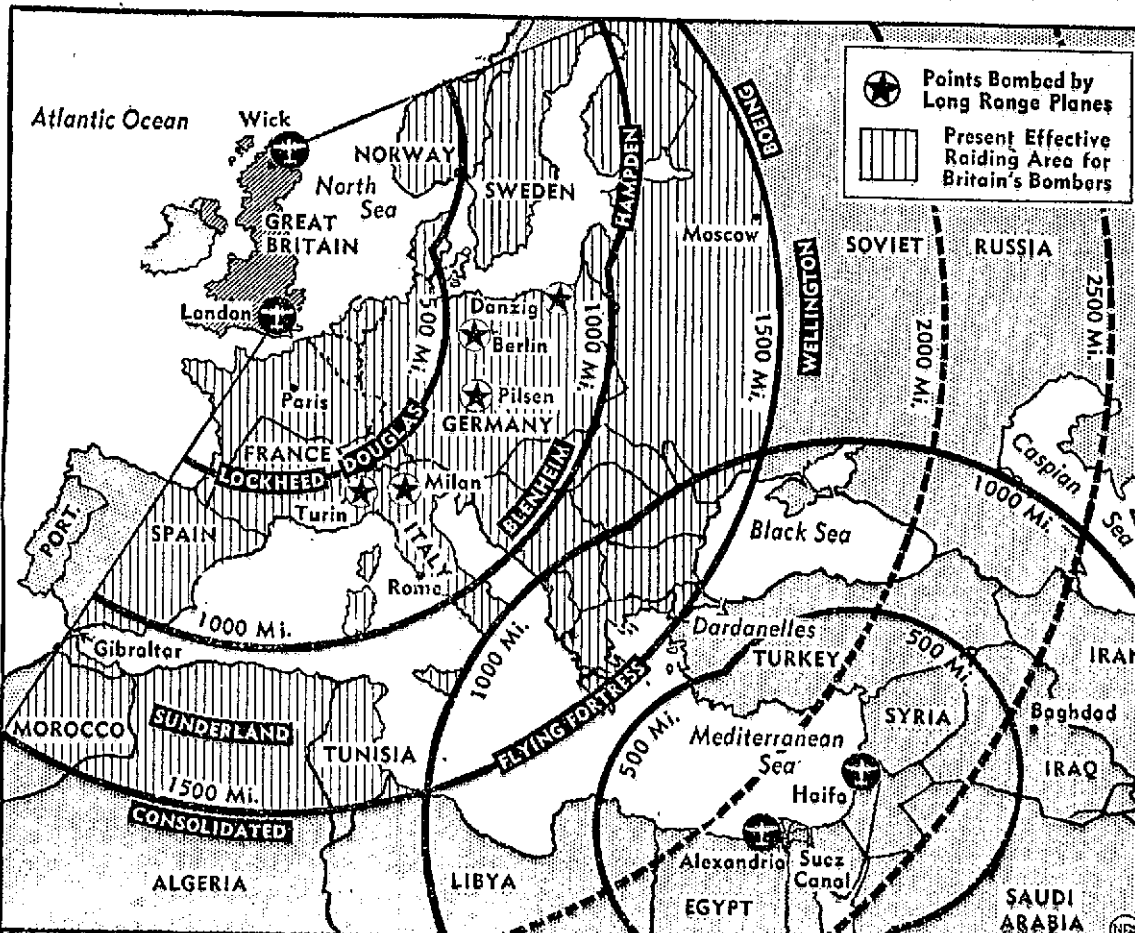

Another bombed vessel goes down as Battle of the Atlantic nears its climax.

(Exclusive NEA Service photos from March of Time.)

These unusual pictures, confiscated by British contraband control officers, put you in the pilot's seat of a Stuka dive bomber during an attack on a British convoy "somewhere in the Atlantic." Filmed by official German army cameramen, the pictures were on their way to South America for use in German propaganda.

Long Range Bombers Boost British Raiding Radius

More long range bombers are Britain's need for an extended offensive to all parts of German-occupied Europe. Distance rings on map show how British bombers can strike objectives up to 1500 miles from England, then return, or fly on to land and refuel at a Near East base. Round-trip raiding limits are shown for some of the types of British and U. S.-built bombers now in use.

Rudolf Hess Hitler 'Shadow', Believed Hurt

Aides Arrested for Permitting Him to Fly After Hitler's Ban

BERLIN (AP)—Rudolf Hess, Hitler's No. 2 heir, crashed in a flight made contrary to Hitler's orders, the Nazi party announced Monday night, and his adjutants were accused of permitting him to fly, and were arrested.

The announcement did not make clear the extent, if any, of the party's deputy injuries, but stated Hess had been in bad health for some time.

It was reported that Hess had been missing since the flight in his own plane last Saturday.

His adjutants were accused of having been aware that Hess had been ordered not to fly.

The German leader was virtually minister without portfolio in Hitler's cabinet.

Hitler said September 1, first day of the war, that he had selected Hess as his No. 2 man to succeed him as head of Germany in the event of his own death. His first choice was Field Marshal Goering.

Hess was often called Hitler's "shadow."

"Hallucinations"
BERLIN — (AP) — Rudolf Hess, high advisor and aide of Adolf Hitler, is presumed to have crashed at the controls of his own plane and is feared to have been a victim of hallucinations, the Nazi party announced Monday.

Hess had been missing since Saturday from Augsburg in the plane he had acquired contrary to Hitler's orders.

He left behind a letter, the contents of which show in their confusion the traces of mental disorder which led the party to believe that Comrade Hess was a victim of hallucination party officials announced.

Hitler, Il Duce, Stalin to Meet

Vichy Hears of Impending European Conference

VICHY — (AP) — Diplomatic sources reported here Monday that a meeting between Hitler, Mussolini and Stalin was likely in the near future.

Informants said the meeting would be in connection with the reorganization of the European economic situation, if not a European military bloc.

These sources believed the meeting would be part of a far-reaching shake-up, including Spain, and French Naval leader Darlan's negotiations with the Nazis.

Friends are cordially invited to attend.

"Two in One" Club and One Guest Attend Friday Meeting
The Two in One club members met at the home of Mrs. Orville Oglesby on Friday afternoon with one guest, Miss Willie Mae Johnston, also attending.

During the business session much was accomplished and plans were discussed for the May outing.
The subject of the program was "Mother" and the leader was Mrs. Oglesby. Mrs. Ben Waller expressed the meaning of the word in a pretty poem. The guest, Miss Johnston favored the group with a reading "My Mother."

The contest prize went to Mrs. Odell Luck. The hostess served a delicious salad plate with leaf tea to the guests.

Glass-Orton
The marriage of Miss Jane Elinor Orton daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Rolen Orton to Weldon Shepherd Glass, son of Mrs. Vernon Glass Sr. of Texarkana, Texas was solemnized on Sunday afternoon May 11th, at the home of the bride's parents. The Rev. Thomas Brewster, pastor of the First Presbyterian church of Hope presided and a few close friends of the couple.

An arch of smilax with tall baskets of white roses marked the place of ceremony. Baskets of spring flowers were used for decorations throughout the home. Preceding the ceremony, Miss Kathleen Johnson, aunt of the bride played "Liebestraum" by Liszt. William R. Orton, Jr. sang "Your Eyes Have Told Me So" (Blaufoos) and "I Love Thee" (Grieg). The bride chorus from Wagner's Lohengrin was used for the entrance of the bride party. Proverbs "Intermezzo" was played softly during the ceremony.

The bride who was given in marriage by her father, wore a Redingbote Model of navy-blue with accessories of powder pink. Her hat was powder pink milan straw with navy tulle and shoulder length veil. She wore an orchid corsage and carried a white Bible. Mrs. Lamar Cox, cousin of the bride was her only attendant. Her dress was powder pink sheer. Her corsage was blue iris and she wore an off-the-face black hat. Robert Vance of Texarkana, Texas, served as best man for Mr. Glass.

After the ceremony an informal reception was held. Miss Nancy Jett of Fulton served the wedding cake. Miss Claudia Whitworth presided at the punch bowl, assisted by Miss Dorothy Henry and Miss Harriet Ann Harkness of Fulton.
Mr. and Mrs. Glass left immediately after the reception for points in Texas and Mexico. On their return they will be home at 821 Pine street, Texarkana, Texas.

Miss Claudia Whitworth Has Breakfast for Sunday Bride
Miss Claudia Whitworth invited friends to a breakfast at the Barlow on Sunday morning honoring Mrs. Weldon Glass, who before her Sunday afternoon wedding was Miss Jane Orton.

The color scheme of pink and blue was carried out in the table decorations with the center of interest being a large bowl of pink roses and blue sunflowers. Dainty corsages of the same flowers marked the places for the guests. The honoree was presented with a dainty gift.
Guests were the honoree, Mrs. Louise Hagan, Miss Mary Louise Keith, Miss Mary Delia Carrigan, Mrs. Lamar Cox, Miss Josephine Morris, and Miss Hattie Anne Field.

Strike Looms in General Motors

Work Stops on 300 Million Dollars of Shipbuilding
DETROIT (AP)—The United Automobile Workers (C. I. O.) will go on strike at 7 a. m. Thursday at 60 General Motors plants throughout the nation unless an agreement on new contracts demands is reached before that time between the union and management in renewed conferences at Washington, U. A. W.-C. I. O. officers announced Sunday.
Decision to call the strike was reached at a meeting here Sunday of the union's general Motors Council, which heard reports on efforts to settle the dispute at conferences in Washington.

At additional Washington conferences Tuesday and Wednesday, the Defense Mediation Board panel will seek a new settlement of the union's demands for wage increases, union shop recognition, improved grievance machinery and extension of powers of the labor union authorized in the of the cabinet ministers.

The tomb of the Unknown Soldier near the west door of Westminster Abbey also escaped damage.
Rescue parties still are working Monday at a hotel hit by a heavy bomb which exploded in the basement where 140 had taken refuge. Several bodies had been recovered. The hotel is uninhabitable.
Dead and wounded and "some damage" were inflicted at both Bremen and Hamburg. The latter, Germany's biggest seaport, underwent its second major bombing in as many nights. Several hundred German planes were said to have participated in the Nazi raids on the English air bases. The attacks were called wide-spread but not particularly concentrated.
The pilots sought especially the airports from which RAF long-distance bombers have been starting their raids on Germany.
Moderate air activity on shipping in British waters was reported and several Welsh ports were declared to have been subjected to bombardment.

British Capital

The British Museum, and Big Ben, the giant clock, and storied Westminster Hall.
Whole blocks of the sprawling capital were devoured by flames which the most strenuous efforts could not check.
The central tower of the abbey, known as the lantern, was smashed in, and wreckage fell on the spot where England's kings and queens are crowned, but the coronation chairs had been moved to safety in August 1939. Other relics also were being found safe among the wreckage Monday.
Prime Minister Churchill's room was untouched, as were most of those chairs from Wagner's Lohengrin was used for the entrance of the bride party. Proverbs "Intermezzo" was played softly during the ceremony.

Witmer Upheld by High Court

Former Manager Arkansas Dailies Sustained in Suit
LITTLE ROCK (AP)—Wallace Witmer, Memphis (Tenn.) newspaper advertising special representative Monday won in the supreme court the right to solicit advertising contracts with newspapers served by Arkansas Dailies, Inc., of Memphis, a rival firm, with which he formally was associated as general manager.
Reversing a lower court decision, the supreme court held in a four-to-two decision that the trial court erred in enjoining Witmer from entering into a separate competitive business with Arkansas Dailies and in cancelling advertising contracts Witmer had made with Fayetteville and Harrison newspapers.
Associate Justices J. S. Holt and E. L. McInnes dissented.
C. E. Palmer, Texarkana, head of Arkansas Dailies, filed suit in Boone Chancery court Tuesday and Fayetteville papers were void and asking an injunction to restrain Witmer from soliciting his customers on the grounds he was taking advantage of confidential information which he had gained in his capacity as general manager of Arkansas Dailies.
Palmer said he would ask a rehearing of the case.

Two Hope Men Attend Meet
Letter Carriers Hold Quarterly Meet Saturday
TEXARKANA — The Southwestern Arkansas District Letter Carriers regular quarterly meeting which was held at Texarkana, Saturday with unusually large attendance.
The meeting was held at the Central Christian church where a banquet was served by the ladies of that church. A check-up showed that not only had the carriers and their wives turned out in good number from all over the district but that there were several postmasters assistant postmasters, superintendents of mail and other postal employees in attendance. C. P. Roberts, district president and Floyd Crank of Hope attended the meet.

It was decided to hold the next meeting at Hope on Saturday August 9th. The program will be arranged later by the executive committee and the ladies auxiliary but it will include a "hot luck" supper at Fair park. Because of the central location and the carriers preference to Hope as a meeting place, it is expected that this will be the best attended meeting in the history of the district organization.

ing over the top of the hill.
Not one of these danger spots in our own section is marked by the customary double center line which means "Passing Forbidden."
I hold that elementary traffic markings such as these are more vital than statutory speed limits for the safety of the traveling public.
For the speeder traveling at an excessive rate under dangerous conditions may be arrested for reckless driving—but it is always possible for a tourist traveling on an unfamiliar road to misjudge the passing line in a rolling country where the road is unmarked.
Absolute enforcement of general traffic regulations, and holding drivers responsible for proper lights and good brakes—these rather than a mere statutory limit on speed are the elements of highway safety.
For the statutory speed limit has been tried again and again and has failed of its purpose.
America's highways today are serving the passenger purpose of the railroads of yesterday. The public has a right on the open road to expect to be able to match railroad speed on the straight stretches.
The sooner we accept that inescapable fact and establish safeguards to meet the obvious, the better off we will be.
I appear to have brought in a minority report on this question, but I have history on my side—and where history is, the future is likely to be also.

Navy Appears in New Ads

Seamen Feature New Chesterfield Campaign
Hollywood, take notice. Two real sailors from Uncle Sam's Navy featured in the first advertisement of the new Chesterfield cigarette schedule, could give America's screen heroes a run for their money.
The seamen, Coxswain Joseph Ellis Newton and Electrician's Mate Edward F. Hayward of the new great battleship U. S. S. North Carolina, were selected from 1000 men on the receiving ship Seattle as typical of the high calibre of our U. S. Navy personnel.
Other advertisements of the new Chesterfield series are built around a foursome of goldfom's great—Grantland Rice, Sam Sneed, Jug McSpaden and Ed Oliver—and three motion pictures, "The Sea Hawk," "The Sea Hawk," and "The Sea Hawk."
Glenn Miller radio programs continue high in popularity ratings. National billboard postings, magazine advertising and dealer cutouts support the newspaper campaign.

Lindbergh in New Warning

Says Future Lies in Ability to Govern Itself
MINNEAPOLIS (AP)—Charles A. Lindbergh, like his father a generation ago, told a Minnesota audience Saturday night that the future of democracy depended "on our ability to govern our own country."
"It rests on the character of our own people," he said in an address prepared for delivery under the auspices of the America First Committee. "What happens in Europe and Asia is of secondary importance to what is happening to us here in our own land."
"It is far more essential for this country to have farms without mortgages, workmen with their own homes than it is for us to crusade abroad for freedoms that are tottering in our own country."

The famous flyer recalled that 25 years ago his late father, who was a member of congress, was also speaking on Minnesota platforms against American intervention in a European war.
"He believed that this country had a destiny of its own," Lindbergh said. "When my father charged political and financial interests with leading us to war, his meetings were broken up, his patriotism was questioned, and the plates of his book were destroyed by government agents."
"We entered a war that was going to make the world safe for democracy, and all need for war in the future. After that, we left the future of the world in the hands of our college presidents and idealists who proceeded to outlay war and make the world safe for democracy. The greatest wars and the bloodiest revolutions of all history have taken place under their guidance."

"But the kind of democracy we fought for in the last war doesn't exist today, even in our own country."
Lindbergh asserted again that the United States was not in a position to win the present war for England. "When I tell you (this) I am charged with being disloyal by the same politicians and idealists who denied all the other statements when I made them. But they cannot point to a single one that has not turned out to be true."

'Chad Hanna', Vivid Tent Show Drama, Opens Here Tuesday

Latest Circus Drama Comes to Saenger

Henry Fonda,
Dorothy Lamour,
Linda Darnell
Head Super Cast

There's still magic in the cry "The circus has come to town," and glamor that overworked word—still makes its home under the canvas.

Show business, the movies as well as the theater and vaudeville, owes much to this type of amusement, for it was the traveling tent show that kept theatrical tradition alive in this country in remote places in times that were otherwise barren of professional entertainment. If it hadn't been for the wandering wagon shows of those early days, the habit of "going to a show" might never have been started.

So when the movie-makers set about filming a picture like the 20th Century-Fox Technicolor production of "Chad Hanna" by Walter D. Edmonds, which comes to the Saenger theater Tuesday and Wednesday, it is really a labor of love.

More than that it provided an actor's paradise, for the best-selling novel, which was published in the Saturday Evening Post under the title of "Red Wheels Rolling," boasts such colorful characters as Chad Hanna, Albany Yates, the gorgeous bareback rider, Caroline, the love-starved wife and dozen others. Chad, played by Henry Fonda, is typical of every country boy who ever fell in love with the beautiful bareback rider; Albany, portrayed by Dorothy Lamour, is the creature of sultry allure who frankly tells him: "I'm here just to make country boys like you fall in love!"; and Caroline, played by Linda Darnell, is the girl who clothed Chad in a glory of worship—and was forgotten by the dazzled youth.

Filming a story like this means a lot of work, though, for all concerned. First there's the matter of research. Walter D. Edmonds may well be said to be this country's foremost authority on the Mohawk Valley, the locale in which he has set so many of his best-selling novels—novels which have become, in turn, bestselling movies—like "The Farmer Takes a Wife" and "Drums Along the Mohawk." But even Mr. Edmonds had to do a lot of digging to find facts about the tent shows that travelled through that part of the country in the early years of the nineteenth century. Then the 20th Century-Fox research and property departments had to collaborate on finding such exotic items as old circus lamps, old circus harness, 1830 traveling rugs and the like.

It meant hard work for the actors, too. Linda Darnell and Dorothy Lamour had to learn bareback riding well enough to pass for close-ups, which means very well indeed. Fortunately both of them are horsewomen but even that didn't do much more than give them the confidence to start. Henry Fonda and the male members of the cast had to engage in one of the toughest, longest, and most dangerous ever screened. Ordinarily, of course, doubles are used whenever important players are supposed to miss each other up, but Director changed all that. Moving his cameras, Henry King, a stickler for realism, in close to get the expressions of the fighting men, he also moved them so close that no substitutions were possible.

And yet, with all this, it may well have been that Roscoe Ates and Jane Darwell, who have comedy roles, had the toughest job of all. Miss Darwell had to pad herself out to look like a sideshow fat woman weighing three hundred and seventy pounds. Roscoe Ates, had to enter the cage and lie down to sleep with a lion. The lion's owner and trainer took care to feed the animal triple rations just before he went to "work."

Still and all, because it was a picture about a circus, the cast had a good time, and, in most cases, fulfilled a secret ambition. Linda Darnell, for example, confessed that long before she became stagestruck she had been circus-struck.

Few people know it, but Henry King's first excursion into the field of entertainment took place when he ran away from home at the age of fourteen to join a wagon show. When Henry Fonda was out of work and luck in New York, the first thing that came to his mind was circus work. He wanted to be a clown.

There's really no such thing as an easy job in the making of movies, but in his capacity as script-writer, Nunnally Johnson, who was also associate producer came as close to it as anyone is likely to. As he himself says, "All you have to do with an Edmonds story is let him tell it." Which is another way of saying that Mr. Edmonds never compels a script-writer to inject romance or action into his yarns; they're all there already. It's not coincidence that the three novels of his which the movies have bought and turned into screen fare have been made in the full confidence, full justified, of success.

Walls of London Crumble... But Not the British Spirit

Your children and their children will probably see this picture in history books, for it illustrates completely the English spirit in this war. Note especially how rescuers pay no attention to tottering brick wall perilously close to them.

Others prominently featured in the supporting cast of "Chad Hanna" are Guy Kibbee as "A. D." the boss of the tent show; John Carradine as Mr. Bisbee, the advance man; Ted North, a personable newcomer who is being heralded as a young man likely to follow in the footsteps of Tyrone Power, plays Fred, the circus rider who loves Albany Yates; and Ben Carter, the memorable "Shadrach" of "Maryland," who is cast as a porter who knows nothing of lions, except to start running at mention of the word.

is bumping into the priorities system for the first time, and that's what a good many of the letters are about. Sooner but not later, the division is going to require a pretty complete inventory of all stocks of critical materials, on hand, on order, in process of manufacture. That will mean not only a much larger staff in Washington, but also a field force and probably some inspectors to see that there is no cheating.

The latest monthly priorities critical list of items for which preference ratings are authorized numbers 220. It includes large items from dry-lucks, floating, to small items like insignia, uniform. Only eight are so scarce as to require preference ratings on every order. These are: aluminum, magnesium, nickel, nickel steel, tungsten, neoprene (artificial rubber), machine tools and zinc. Zinc has a trick control by which all producers put 17 per cent of their output into a pool which is adequate for distribution among manufacturers of arm and navy equipment.

When, therefore, Joseph D'Oakes wants say an electric motor for his gadget factory, he doesn't have to get a preference rating if the manufacturer has what he wants in stock, even though electric motors are on the critical list of 220 items. If the manufacturer is tied up with defense orders, however, and can't stop to make a special motor for the D'Oakes plant, Joe will have to get his preference rating and show that the gadget he makes is essential to the completion of dry-lucks, floating, or insignia, uniform, or something.

Supposing, now, old man D'Oakes wants a new turret lathe for his gadget factory. That's different. Lathes, turret, are tools, machine. And machine tools are one of the eight items for which preference ratings are required in every case.

The D'Oakes Company will have to write the Division of Priorities, Office of Production Management, New Social Security Building, Washington, D. C., and get forms to fill out. The forms are two in number, PD-1 and PD-1A. PD-1 is the application for preference rating, a simple little thing of 11 questions on four pages. It must be filled out in triplicate and sworn to before a notary public.

Takes Some Swooning
When properly completed, these forms are sent to the machine tool manufacturer, who must fill out form PD-1A, the supplier's statement relating to application for preference rating. This form is of only two pages on one sheet, but it must be filled out in sextuplicate and sworn to.

The papers then go to Washington. D'Oakes keeps one copy, but it's probably just as well not to know what happens to the other four or five. Anyway, whenever whoever is going to do anything about them has done it, and if it is decided that the D'Oakes Gadget Company, Inc., is most certainly entitled to one new or second-hand turret lathe, then the Division of Priorities fills out form PD-2, which tells the Gimmick Machine Tool Company to go ahead and make delivery to the D'Oakes Gadget Company, Inc.

It isn't all as complicated as this sounds. Once a business man has gone through this rigmarole, it's easier the second time, but it is illustrative of the importance of priorities, and why it is necessary to check up on every order of every item.

There is before congress now a new bill to give the Division of Priorities more authority to compel the production of war materials, instead of merely controlling the distribution of them.

SERIAL STORY

BY OREN ARNOLD

YESTERDAY: Even Leana had not anticipated the terrific force of a 3,000-ton explosion. The entire mountain is shaken. Mummy Ridge is blown to bits and no one heard Leana's last scream. The village is protected by the solid granite side of Tonto. In Blair, where he had gone at Leana's request, Bob heard a faint, knowing what had happened, rushed to his car.

PLANS FOR TWO

CHAPTER XXIV

BOB HALE suffered the tortures of the damned as he raced back down the old mine road. It was narrow, and winding, and so required 10 minutes at the best possible speed. He was sobbing in a sort of restrained hysteria. Neither he nor the man with him could speak. Bob had black visions of his village completely buried or at least laid in death and ruin. Specifically, he suffered in seeing Carolyn Tyler dead a thousand ways.

He swerved around the last curve, then, and instantly identified Carolyn herself.

He yelled at her. "CAROLYN! ... CAROLYN!"

It was a wild, frenzied cry which slipped into infinite gladness when he saw that she was actually running.

THE village seemed intact, and other folk were stirring now, but he recognized Carolyn from afar partly because he so desperately wanted to and partly because he couldn't mistake the bright red shirt she still wore, the same one she had worn during the ride.

That shirt had intrigued him for two hours this afternoon. It had been a gay challenge to Leana Sormi's severe black-and-white riding habit. It had been precisely the right complement for Carolyn's flaxen curls. It had topped—just right—her dark blue, form-fitting jodhpurs, to emphasize her as the slender, lovely girl she was.

He stopped his car when he had to, jumped out and started running.

There was no outpouring of words between them.

All at once he was holding her. Just clasping her tight, feeling her cry and trembling powerfully with her in sheer intensity of emotions.

It was she who murmured first. "Bob! ... Bob!"

LOVE POWER

COPYRIGHT, 1941, NEA SERVICE, INC.

"Little girl!" He kissed the top of her forehead, still squeezing her close. He shut his eyes tightly. There was a strange, and, and yet sweet ecstasy between them.

THERE was no chance to relax for almost 24 hours. But late on that second day, amid the stirring and the milling and the excitement of peoples arriving and going through all the inevitable, if kindly hullabaloo, Bob said that the time had come to take Carolyn away lest she drop in her tracks. Her mother had already been sent to Blair, along with most of the remaining personnel here in the mountain village. Officials from the Arizona county seat, 100 miles away, had come to take charge.

First thing Bob did was to make Carolyn eat. She had lived only on a sandwich and a few cups of coffee forced on her since yesterday.

"You must eat also," she reminded him, there in the tiny Blair Inn. "Gee, Bob, we do get into the awfullest things!"

The meal was a life saver. In both it restored strength, energy, hope.

"Mind if we don't go back to-night?" he asked wistfully, after the twilight meal. "Let's just ride out alone, where we can think."

They didn't have to go far. Only a mile or so to escape the flood of newspaper men, photographers, officers, curious folk who had poured in. They left Bob's car and sat on a flat red boulder near the road.

Stars had begun their timeless winking. Later there would even be a moon, but already the world was beautiful with the soft, evanescent something that is early night.

Presently they found themselves talking. Quietly, intimately, passionately going over the whole thing, recounting all the weeks since she had first come to work for him, re-living the horror of the explosion itself but in a new feeling of deep gratitude for escape.

"I waited for you, Bob, at the guard shack, when the guards told me you had not come by," she repeated for perhaps the tenth time. "I just did! But when it happened, I was afraid you had gone in! The granite cliff saved us even there, but I couldn't know about you."

He held her very close. "You waited. For me! It seems to me that I have waited for you since time began, Carolyn! Waited and hungered for you. I was so madly in love with you when you dropped from the airplane that—if it hadn't been for your Ken Palmer, I should have—Carolyn, I warn you I don't intend to be a gentleman ever again! You had told me in the beginning that Ken loved you. I felt it only fair to—"

"But I didn't say I loved him!" She laughed again. "And all this, while I thought you indifferent!"

He shook his head a little bitterly. "I tried dutifully to force myself on—Leana. Thinking, and fearing, she and I might—might—Remember, I even appealed to you!"

"I remember," Carolyn whispered.

"It is tragic, even so, to know her guilty of this. I had no idea she felt so deeply in a personal way! But Carolyn, may we not promise never to mention that aspect of it again? Anything that would cause unhappiness to linger in you—"

"Of course, Bob, Oh Bob, please hold me very close, and kiss me again!"

THEY talked for more than an hour, quietly, tenderly. It was the best solace they could have arranged. He grew, if possible, more dear to her than ever, more grand.

It was he who suggested giving Ken Palmer a far better job in the Schoenfeld Laboratory back home. It was he who swore then to tell the secret of deriving X-999 to a dozen other picked American scientists, who could form a corporation for developing it in the safest, sanest way.

It was he who, finally, said, "I think I have earned a rest, Carolyn, and I'd like to be a year, with you. Summer is near, and the Pacific Northwest is beautiful. Then a lazy sea trip down the coast and across to Mexico City—They say it's romance land, sweetheart! Romance land!"

He had slipped into a boyish sort of enthusiasm. Here was a Bob Hale she had never known before! She could not answer, in words; there was a tautness in her throat. But she could press her head a little closer into the crook of his shoulder, where her lips could just touch his chin.

Last thing they saw when they arose to go home was a faint, gray spot high on the hills to the north-east. That was the granite half of Tonto Mountain, its peak holding one last hint of day's sun.

"It's still beautiful," Carolyn murmured. "And strong!" said he. "Strong and—triumphant. Like—" he dropped to a whisper,—"like our love, my dear."

Helpful Hint

When making paste for house-hold use, add a teaspoonful of powdered alum to the mixture of boiled flour and water. The resultant paste keeps good twice as long and is more than twice as strong as when made without alum.
